In 1980 I became convinced that speed reading could become a universal skill for all children if it were just made available in the right way to the general public. At that time the only speed reading courses available were those which cost hundreds of dollars per student. Also, these same courses were directed at adults (mostly college students and business owners).

[Updated] TfL have published a "London Digital Speed Limit Map", showing speed limits for cars on a map of London's public roads, for the last few years. It is updated annually, and its latest version has just been released. The map is a graphical representation of data supplied to digital mapping data providers, so that they can program in the correct speeds for satnavs in cars.
